How to Play

Meeting Survival Bingo turns a long meeting into a quiet, friendly game.
Listen for the phrases on your card — when you hear one, mark it off.

1 PRINT

Print one card per player on US Letter paper or cardstock. Each card in this pack is different — no two players share the same layout.

2 GRAB A MARKER

Use a pen, highlighter, coins, or sticky notes. On a video call, print at home or open the PDF and mark it on screen.

3 LISTEN & MARK

When a phrase on your card is actually said in the meeting, mark that square. The center square is FREE — mark it before you start.

4 CALL BINGO — QUIETLY

First to complete a full row, column, or diagonal wins. Agree your win signal in advance: a polite hand-raise, a chat message, or a triumphant sip of coffee. Keep it kind and discreet — the meeting host is a person, not a punchline.

5 RESET & REMATCH

Swap cards for the next meeting. Use the Master Phrase List (last page) as a caller list for parties, icebreakers, and team-building games where one person reads phrases aloud.

HOUSE RULES — KEEP IT CLEAN & KIND

- Clean workplace humor only — nothing mean, crude, or personal.
- Never interrupt a meeting just to score a square.
- If in doubt, don't play it in a serious or sensitive meeting.
