

Passive-Aggressive Fridge Note Pack

SAMPLE PACK · 16 printable notes + 4 write-your-own blanks

CLEAN-FUNNY · SNARKY, NEVER MEAN · FOR HOMES, ROOMMATES & BREAK ROOMS

What this is

Sixteen ready-to-print notes for the small household and office moments that deserve a laugh instead of an argument: dishes, the thermostat, vanished leftovers, laundry, loud gaming, microwave fish, and more.

Every note follows the house rule: say the true thing, say it funny, and never be mean. No profanity, no personal digs — just a nudge with a smile.

How to use it

1. Print pages 2–5 on US Letter paper or light card stock (color looks best; grayscale works).
2. Cut along the dashed lines — each sheet makes 4 notes (about 3.5" × 4.6").
3. Stick one on the fridge, the washer, the microwave, or the bathroom mirror. Add a magnet or tape.
4. Page 6 has 4 blank write-your-own templates for your household's unique situations.

A quick note on tone

These notes are for fun between people who basically like each other. If a real conversation is needed, have the conversation — then put a note on the fridge anyway, for the dishes.

✉ A FRIENDLY NOTE ABOUT: THE DISHES

Please read in your nicest inner voice.

The Dishes Have Formed a Union

The plates in the sink have been there so long, they've organized, elected a leader, and are now demanding better working conditions. Please help negotiate a settlement: soap, water, ten minutes.

With love and mild exasperation,
— A Concerned Household Member

✉ A FRIENDLY NOTE ABOUT: THE THERMOSTAT

Please read in your nicest inner voice.

Thermostat Treaty Violation

Friendly reminder: the thermostat is not a voting machine, a mood ring, or a competitive sport. It was 72. It is now 64. Antarctica called — they said, “Too much.” Please restore the peace treaty.

Staying warm-ish,
— Everyone Wearing a Blanket Indoors

✉ A FRIENDLY NOTE ABOUT: LEFTOVER THEFT

Please read in your nicest inner voice.

Missing: One (1) Slice of Lasagna

Last seen: top shelf, clearly labeled, minding its own business. If you have information about its whereabouts — or its deliciousness — no questions will be asked. A replacement slice will, however, be accepted.

Still hungry,
— The Person Who Saved It For Today

✉ A FRIENDLY NOTE ABOUT: THE BATHROOM

Please read in your nicest inner voice.

The Bathroom Is Not a Library

We admire your commitment to reading, scrolling, and reflecting. However, there is a line forming, and it is becoming a small community. Please enjoy the next chapter from somewhere with a couch.

Patiently (mostly),
— The Line Outside the Door

✉ A FRIENDLY NOTE ABOUT: THE LAUNDRY

Please read in your nicest inner voice.

Laundry Mountain: Expedition Notice

Your clothes have been in the washer so long, they are now considered a local landmark. Please move them to the dryer before they develop their own ecosystem and start charging rent.

Breathing through my mouth,
— The Next Person in Line for the Washer

✉ A FRIENDLY NOTE ABOUT: LOUD GAMING

Please read in your nicest inner voice.

Volume Control: A Love Letter

Your 1 a.m. victory celebration was truly inspiring. The whole house felt it. Literally — the walls participated. Headphones after 11 would make you a legend AND a considerate roommate. You can be both.

Tired but proud of you,
— The People With Earplugs In

✉ A FRIENDLY NOTE ABOUT: OFFICE MICROWAVE

Please read in your nicest inner voice.

The Microwave Fish Incident

Someone microwaved fish in the break room, and the entire office now smells like a seafood market at low tide. We are not mad. We are just... aware. And opening every window in the building.

With watery eyes,
— The Whole Office, United At Last

✉ A FRIENDLY NOTE ABOUT: THE TRASH

Please read in your nicest inner voice.

The Trash Is Full. So, So Full.

Stacking one more item on top does not count as “taking out the trash.” That is just playing Jenga with garbage, and nobody wins that game. The bag ties. The door is right there. You've got this.

Believing in you,
— The Kitchen Floor (Please Don't)

✉ A FRIENDLY NOTE ABOUT: THE FRIDGE

Please read in your nicest inner voice.

The Empty Milk Carton Mystery

An empty milk carton was found back in the fridge, placed there with care, as if it might refill itself out of optimism. It will not. Please add “milk” to the shopping list — that list is lonely too.

Cereal in hand,
— Breakfast, Postponed

✉ A FRIENDLY NOTE ABOUT: TOILET PAPER

Please read in your nicest inner voice.

An Urgent Roll Call

The toilet paper roll is empty. The spare rolls are six inches away. Six. Inches. Replacing it takes eleven seconds and makes you, officially, a hero of the household. Capes are optional but encouraged.

Gratefully,
— The Next Person (Please Hurry)

✉ A FRIENDLY NOTE ABOUT: THE COFFEE

Please read in your nicest inner voice.

Whoever Finished the Coffee…

…left exactly one heroic sip in the pot, presumably so they could say they didn't finish it. Bold strategy. Next time, please start a fresh pot — future-you is also in this meeting and also needs coffee.

Caffeinated in spirit only,
— Everyone Before 9 a.m.

✉ A FRIENDLY NOTE ABOUT: THE FRONT DOOR

Please read in your nicest inner voice.

Welcome to Shoe Mountain

Please enjoy your visit to Shoe Mountain, located directly inside our front door. Hikers are reminded that there is, in fact, a shoe rack three feet away. It believes in you. We believe in you.

Tripping with grace,
— Everyone Coming Home With Groceries

✉ A FRIENDLY NOTE ABOUT: FRIDGE SCIENCE

Please read in your nicest inner voice.

Science Experiment in the Fridge

The container on the second shelf has been there so long, it may qualify as a science fair project. If it's yours, please retire it with honors. If it's nobody's, it still has to go. It has started to supervise the other food.

Holding my breath,
— The Fridge Light (It Sees Everything)

✉ A FRIENDLY NOTE ABOUT: TOOTHPASTE

Please read in your nicest inner voice.

The Great Toothpaste Squeeze

Someone squeezed the toothpaste from the middle, and the tube now has the posture of a question mark. We can fix this together: squeeze from the bottom, roll as you go, and restore peace to the bathroom counter.

Minty fresh,
— Team Bottom-Up

✉ A FRIENDLY NOTE ABOUT: OFFICE FRIDGE

Please read in your nicest inner voice.

Friday Is Fridge Clean-Out Day

Anything unlabeled, undated, or older than the last office party will be retired on Friday at 4 p.m. — no appeals, no farewell speeches. Label your lunch like you mean it, and it will survive to be eaten by you.

Officially but kindly,
— The Break Room

✉ A FRIENDLY NOTE ABOUT: THE LIGHTS

Please read in your nicest inner voice.

We Don't Own the Electric Company

Every light in the house is on, including two rooms nobody has entered since Tuesday. The house looks lovely and ready for a runway landing. If you're not in a room, its light can rest too. Thank you!

Glowing with pride (not wattage),
— The Electric Bill

✉ A FRIENDLY NOTE ABOUT: _____

Write your own headline:

With love and mild exasperation,

— _____

✉ A FRIENDLY NOTE ABOUT: _____

Write your own headline:

With love and mild exasperation,

— _____

✉ A FRIENDLY NOTE ABOUT: _____

Write your own headline:

With love and mild exasperation,

— _____

✉ A FRIENDLY NOTE ABOUT: _____

Write your own headline:

With love and mild exasperation,

— _____